own people." Before discussing these pronouncements let us stop to note the fact that the proportion of value of the overseas commerce of the United States carried in American vessels is now something like only 8 per cent. Seventy or eighty years ago the proportion was something like 90 per cent. To this we may add the further statement that in 1909, when the overseas commerce of the United States had reached four-fold what it was fifty years ago, American vessels represented but one third of the tonnage which was on the register in 1860. What are the reasons for this decline? The explanation would appear to be traceable mainly to the shipping legislation of the United States and the comparatively high cost of labour in America, which severely handicaps the American shipowner against his foreign competitors, who are not only able to operate more cheaply but in some cases receive the encouragement of their respective Governments in the form of heavy subsidies. Clearly the position is, from the point of view of the United States, extremely unsatisfactory. We may not think much of the Republican argument that the development of the country's mercantile marine will lead to an enlargement of foreign trade and the industrial prosperity of the American people. Both these objects can be served as well by foreign as by American ships. America is never likely to suffer from any inadequacy of transport arrangements for her commerce; but the view that an enlarged American mercantile marine is "essential to national defence" is one that can be strongly supported by a reference to the services rendered by merchant ships in the wars in which Japan and Great Britain have engaged in recent years. As to the particular form the encouragement shall take, there seems to be much diversity of opinion in America. Direct navigation subsidies are regarded by many as subsidies in reality for the steel trusts, and are on that account frowned upon. In the current number of the Atlantic Monthly there is an article by Mr. FRANCIS T. BOWLES on "One way to an American Mercantile Marine," which deserves some attention. The way advocated is by discriminating duties. The average rate of duty in the present tariff he understands to be 41 per cent. ad valorem, and his proposal is that there be a preference equivalent to a 10 per cent. reduction in the tariff. He writes:

We make our tariff to protect our industries and we know the results; yet for eighty years we have neglected this enormous item (shipping) in our trade-balance, which is other more clever nations have secured, and mainly because it is one that does not appear in the books of the Treasury. Other nations, we know, have assisted by mail rates, by favourable laws and port charges, by bounties, by other valuable privileges. We seem unable to face the direct aid of subsidy, so why not announce to the world that we propose to take a fair proportion of the carrying trade by the means provided us by the Constitution; and why not announce it as clearly and unmistakably as we proclaim in every tariff bill that we propose to retain the home market of the United States for our own manufactures? It is not to be expected that the foreigner will like the one announcement better than the other, but he has no stronger weapons with which to meet it, and we have no reason to fear in either case.

One objection to this proposal will immediately occur to most readers. What if the other nations of the world took a leaf from the American book and discriminated against American ships? America's export trade is something like seventy per cent. greater than her import trade, and that being so, we imagine Mr. Bowles will not find it easy to convince his fellow-citizens that the foreigner does not hold a weapon which could be used with results fatal to the success of his scheme.

This marks the Japan Chronicle, is the fourth large steamer disposed of to Japanese buyers during the last few months by this firm.

CANTON.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

December 29th.

CLAN FIGHTING.

There has been some very serious clan fighting in two of the villages outside the North Gate. To such a serious extent did the fighting go that the authorities sent a body of troops to restore order. This was done at the expense of several killed and wounded. The latter were brought into the City and treated at the Fong Pin Hospital. It is high time the government took steps to suppress with a heavy hand this continuous fighting in the villages, and in this respect it is interesting to hear what a non-Christian Chinese gentleman said at the opening of a new hospital in a country town not far away. He said that he had observed that the "Jesus doctrine" had been instrumental in adding wonderfully to the world's peace, and therefore if it could bring peace to the Chinese villages torn as they are with innumerable feuds the more of the "Jesus doctrine" they could have the better.

A FIRE.

This year, in notable contrast with last, Canton has been singularly free from fires. Unfortunately a somewhat serious one occurred the day before yesterday in Chung Tong Street in the Old City. This part of the city is extremely old, the streets more than ordinarily narrow, and a fire once started the buildings burn like matchwood. Such was the case on the 25th inst., when in spite of the efforts of various fire brigades no less than eight houses and shops were reduced to ashes and several persons were seriously burned.

ROBBING THE VICEROY.

The Chinese thief is no respecter of persons, as the following will show. Yesterday the Viceroy had occasion to go out, and as is usual, the bulk of the Yamen Guard accompanied him as an escort. While the Yamen was thus practically deserted thieves made their way in, and made off with several valuable articles. The Police, the Nam Hoi Magistrate and the Pun Yu Magistrate were at once informed and special detectives were sent out to try to discover the missing articles. No trace of the thieves has as yet been discovered and the remainder of the guard left in the Yamen have fallen into dire disgrace, for it is suspected that they had a hand in helping the thieves to get away with the plunder. They have been warned that unless the culprits are discovered within a stated time they will be punished severely.

A GREAT ROBBERY.

Two years ago a great robbery occurred at a place called Hop Shui Ho in the Ko Ming District and the robbers got away with a very large quantity of plunder. The magistrate was ordered to arrest the thieves, but even to this day the culprits remain at large. The magistrate also got into trouble over this by a similar outrage. It appears that a few days ago in broad daylight a gang of 130 robbers well armed attacked the town, and succeeded in plundering ten of the richest shops. They took a large amount of booty and nine of the shop managers or proprietors were taken away to hold for ransom. The robbers did not get clear away without a fight, for they were attacked by such police as the place possesses with the result that one bandit was killed, while the police lost one killed and several wounded.

MURDER BY ROBBERIES.

Here is one more example of the terrible state of affairs that exists in the country districts. In the Pun Yu district there is a village called Sun Wai, an inhabitant of which was one Chun, a well-to-do farmer. The other day he was attacked by a gang of thieves, who stripped the unfortunate farmer of his money and even his clothing. His younger brother then gave chase to the robbers, but was shot dead after he had followed them but a short distance. The surviving brother then drew up a petition which was sent to the Pun Yu magistrate, and that official had an inquest held on the body. The murderers are still at large.

FUGIOUS RIDING.

The new Road is always in a very crowded and congested state, and the police have issued strict orders that all equestrians riding thereon are to proceed at walking pace. In spite of these orders several Chinese youths whose skill in riding is decidedly limited may be seen rushing along at what is really a dangerous pace. One of these yesterday knocked down and seriously hurt a poor old lady, who was unable to move quickly enough to get out of the way. Instead of stopping to see what damage he had done the young coward urged his horse forward at a faster pace, and in spite of the efforts of a plucky policeman made to stop him was soon out of reach. The poor old dame was treated by the Red Cross doctor, who found that she had been badly bruised and shaken.

A BUDDHIST REVIVAL.

A number of Buddhist monks have lately formed a society known as the Fat-Hok Wui (Buddhist learning association), and the society has its headquarters in a famous monastery in Sai Wang Street. It would appear that the monks are afraid that they are losing their hold on the people, and this is possibly true as far as the male portion of the community is concerned. All who know anything about Buddhism are requested to deliver speeches on the mysteries thereof.

RUNNING THE GAUNTLET.

In the old days it was the custom here that if a thief was discovered in the act he was made to run along the length of the street and submit to the blows of all who chose to strike him. If he survived the ordeal he was usually set free. Since the formation of the modern police this barbarous practice has been stopped, but there was a recrudescence of it a day or two ago. A fur-seller was robbed of a small article, and immediately raised cries of "Thief!" A man was discovered with the stolen article in his possession and the policeman making no objection the street watchman struck the first blow. While the victim was endeavouring to dodge the blows who should come along but the Kwong Chow Prefect, and this high officer immediately alighted from his sedan and wanted to know the reason of such a disturbance. The situation was explained and in deep anger the Prefect ordered the immediate arrest of the constable and the street watchman. In consideration of the severe beating he had received the thief was given his liberty.

On Saturday an important meeting, presided over by the Provincial Treasurer, and at which were present several of the highest officials and the twenty leading opium merchants, was held in the premises of the Prepared Opium Guild. The Treasurer said that if licensed gambling were abolished the government would lose revenue to the extent of over 3,000,000 taels a year, and that this revenue had got to be made up in some way. The government proposed to increase the tax on prepared opium so that it should bring in a monthly revenue of 200,000 taels. The merchants were unwilling to agree to this, and after a deal of discussion it was agreed to hold a meeting of the whole guild concerning the matter.

CORRESPONDENCE.

"THE BIRTH OF NEW WORLDS."

(TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONGKONG DAILY PRESS.")

Sir,—The theory of the Birth of New Worlds which Professor Bickerton is at present explaining in London is not quite so new as you would lead your readers to understand from the paragraph which appears in your paper this morning. You will find the whole theory of the "rejuvenescence of the cosmic system" given in my lecture to the European section of the Y.M.C.A. in Hongkong rather more than two years ago, and duly reported in the local Press. It was there illustrated by some 20 photographs of actual existing nebulae arranged in series of dispersion and reconstruction, so that the whole process was almost under review. The explanation of the appearance of temporary stars has long been the common property of the scientific world, nor do I remember at this moment to whom the credit of its enunciation really belongs, but I think it is to the late Mr. R. A. Proctor. Some six months after delivering my lecture I found the same idea in a somewhat inchoate form in a communication to the "Astronomische Nachrichten" from the Dr. J. J. van der Waerden. The germ of the theory was unquestionably there, and though Dr. Lee had not carried it so far as I had done, it only required logical development to have brought it into exact agreement with my own ideas.

I do not wish to claim priority as against Professor Bickerton, for the credit of a new idea belongs not so much to him who first conceived it as to him who first forces his opinions into the light of the world; but it would seem to illustrate the great disadvantages under which a scientific man labours in a small Colony with a very limited public interested in the current thought of the day—I am, Sir, etc.,

PROPOSED ENLARGEMENT OF YAU-MATI SCHOOL.

At a meeting of the Public Works Committee held on the 27th October the Chairman (Hon. Mr. W. Chatham) submitted a plan for adding an upper storey to the Yau-mati School, which had been originally constructed with a view to such an addition. The extra accommodation that would be afforded comprised five class-rooms capable of containing 184 pupils, a Head Master's room, a teachers' room and a lavatory. Two staircases would be constructed. With the existing building, which contains four class-rooms accommodating 160 pupils, if the number in each room be restricted to 40, or 200 if no such restriction be made, there would be accommodation for 344 or 384 pupils in all. The estimated cost of the entire work, including the necessary school furniture, was $20,000. The Director of Education estimated that, after making provision for the additional staff required, there would be a substantial balance remaining from the extra fees which would be received. The Committee unanimously agreed to recommend that the work be proceeded with in accordance with the plans submitted. Those present at the meeting in addition to the Director of Public Works were the Hon. Mr. Wei Yuk C.M.G., and the Hon. Mr. E. Osborne.

FIRE AT YAU-MATI

A big blaze occurred at Yau-mati on Wednesday night resulting in the total destruction of a Chinese cracker factory. The fire is supposed to have originated through the overturning of a kerosene lamp, and the inflammable nature of the materials on the premises accounted for the rapid progress of the conflagration. In a few minutes the entire place was enveloped in flames, and though the fire brigade turned out smartly the absence of water made it impossible for them to render any effective assistance and the factory was completely gutted. Several of the inmates had narrow escapes, and a number received injuries which necessitated their removal to the hospital. The damage done amounted to $33,000.

MINUTES.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

FINANCIAL MINUTES.

The COLONIAL SECRETARY, by command of His Excellency the Governor, laid on the table Financial Minutes (Nos. 93 to 114), and moved that they be referred to the Finance Committee.

The COLONIAL TREASURER seconded.

HIS EXCELLENCY—Gentlemen, with regard to these financial minutes Nos. 93 to 114, I would like to make a few remarks to the Council concerning them. Three of them are for considerable sums. The first one, No. 103, is for a sum of $114,000 for redemption of subsidiary coinage. I think it would be interesting to the Council if I gave a few facts with regard to the position of the redemption of subsidiary coinage. It has always been the custom for some years past to write off in the Treasury books a certain percentage of loss which is necessary and unavoidable in consequence of the depreciation of subsidiary coinage. We have written off monthly seven per cent. on the face value of Hongkong silver subsidiary coin and 20 per cent. off the face value on copper; that is, on all small coins received by the Government as legal tender in the collection of taxes, especially in the New Territories. That loss has been written off because it is a necessary and inevitable loss on the redemption in consequence of the depreciation of our Hongkong coinage. At the end of 1909 there was a balance in the Treasury of $469,368 face value of subsidiary coinage, and during 1909 there have been written off in the way described the sum of $63,523, so that it has been written down to $405,845.

In consequence of the decision which was taken some three years ago to withdraw from circulation all subsidiary coinage received by the Government as legal tender that amount was remitted home to England for demobilisation early in the present year and its demobilisation involved a further loss of $23,462. At the end of April a further sum had accrued in the Treasury of $210,000, and of this $26,358 had been written off. I agreed that this amount should be sent home, and it involved a further loss of $29,376, so that on a little over two lakhs our total loss was $86,234. This loss was probably larger than the sum that we had lost on the previous remittance, because a larger proportion of it consisted of copper. The total loss on demobilisation on copper, on melting it down to bullion, is 66 per cent. as against 14 per cent. on silver. I did not expect this loss would be so heavy, and therefore the vote in the estimates, which was only $40,000, was exceeded by $39,716. By September a further sum of $219,000 had accumulated in the Treasury and this was sent home while I was away in England; the estimated loss on demobilising this is $56,670. These sums, together with the amount which has to be written off monthly to the end of the year, accounts for the whole of the vote now before you. No more will be sent home this year, because the Treasury cannot afford any further sum on this account, but it is estimated that at the end of this year we will have in hand about $244,169. Against that $19,412 will have been written off. The vote for the redemption of subsidiary coinage which appears annually in the estimates is a rather misleading one. It refers to two separate matters. The first is the unavoidable and inevitable loss we have to sustain in consequence of the depreciation of our coinage, that is to say, the amount which has to be written off in the Treasury and which in 1910 is estimated at $70,440 as against a vote of $40,000. In 1911 we have provided a larger sum, $75,000, which ought to cover that. The second matter included in that vote is loss on demobilisation, which is a purely optional affair. During 1910 we have melted down in all $898,100 face value of subsidiary coinage, that is to say, $759,300 silver and $138,800 copper, and the cost of doing this over and above what we should have to have written off will amount to $83,357, for which no provision was made in the estimates. With regard to this whole question, gentlemen, the Colony has for many years past made a very considerable profit by importing coin which has found its way into China. This was not to be avoided. The Colony was bound to import coin for its own needs, and if this coin disappeared out of the Colony and was taken away into China the Colony was compelled to go on importing in order to maintain its own supply. I do think, however, the profit which was in earlier years made on that coinage ought to have been placed in past years to a reserve fund. But it was not so placed. It was spent. We have now in consequence to make good a profit

The Daily Press.

HONGKONG, DECEMBER 30TH, 1910.

A TELEGRAPHIC dispatch reproduced by us a few days ago from the columns of a Manila contemporary represented President Taft to be concentrating his attention on legislation to encourage the growth of the United States mercantile marine, and this legislation, it seems, is to be very much on the lines of the ill-fated Humphrey Bill, which provided for State subsidies. The question is one which has from time to time occupied the attention of both great political parties. They are agreed as to the value and necessity of encouraging the mercantile marine, but they differ fundamentally as to methods. In the Democratic platform of 1908 occurred these words: "We believe in the upbuilding of the American mercantile marine without new or additional burdens upon the people and without bounties from the public Treasury." The Republican manifesto of the same year said: "We adhere to the Republican doctrine of encouragement to American shipping, and urge such legislation as will revive the merchant marine prestige of the country, so essential to national defence, the enlargement of foreign trade, and the industrial prosperity of our which in past years had been derived from this source. We are therefore as a matter of fact only now liquidating liabilities which accrued in that series of years when we took the profit and used it as a portion of our annual revenue. I have had looked up the amount of profit which we made in that way. There are no separate records prior to the year 1872, but between the years 1872 and 1905 the profit which was credited to revenue amounted to $2,226,234. We began to lose the year that I came to the Colony, 1907, and the loss during the four years which have elapsed since then amounts to $793,298, so that we have only paid back a little more than one-third of the profit we have made. During these four years we have withdrawn in silver subsidiary coinage to the face value of $5,272,000 and in copper to the face value of $255,000, or in actual coins we have withdrawn about 52½ million silver and about 25½ million copper coins. The actual figures are 52,579,486 in silver and 25,538,623 of copper. I think I need hardly remind you that this question of the redundancy of our own coinage and the loss we have had to incur to endeavour to rehabilitate it is quite a separate question from the currency of Chinese coins in this Colony. I am glad to see lately that one important company is discriminating between Hongkong and Chinese coinage, and is now refusing to receive Chinese coinage. I think I may say there is a prospect of a termination of these difficulties. China is taking certain steps towards the rehabilitation of her coinage. However that may be the Treasurer reports, so far as our coinage is concerned, that during the recent financial panic among the Chinese the discount on Hongkong silver coins fell to only three per cent, and the copper now stands at from two to five per cent. He anticipates that when trade revives, and there is a greater demand for silver the discount will decrease gradually and very probably reach par. Once our subsidiary coinage has reached par it will be an easier matter for us to deal with the question of alien coinage in this Colony, if it is necessary to take any particular steps in that direction. I hope you will agree with me that in this very difficult question of coinage we have taken very substantial steps in the last four years in demonstrating, as I have told you, upwards of 77 million coins. The next financial minute regarding which I have a few words to say, is No. 104, that is, the vote for $509,479 for the resumption of land. You will find in the estimates for the current year a sum of $374,876 for the resumption of land for a railway station. The sum now before you relates to the same matter, and the only reason it was brought before the Council today is because it was inaccurately described in the estimates as being a sum for the resumption of land for a railway station. In all probability, it will not now be used for a railway station. The resumption which we had in view for the sum which was placed in the estimates, is the same sum in the vote now under your consideration. You will see from the vote that we have made a saving of about $65,000 on the anticipated price. The financial minute, therefore, you are asked to approve does not involve any new or unauthorized expenditure from what was sanctioned by the Legislative Council when the estimates were passed. The third and only other vote on which I wish to remark is No. 101, a vote of $55,000 in aid of the vote, public works extraordinary. In a reference to the site of four houses which separate the old western market from Morrison Street. Three of them have collapsed and the other one, together with one which was already Government property, are reported by the Building Authority to be unfit for habitation. At the present moment we are in process of rebuilding the western market, adding a second story to it. Even with this increased accommodation the demand for shops and stalls will in all probability not be met. The market is in a very populous district and there is a great demand for stalls. The present moment, therefore, is an exceedingly favourable one for resumption, because we only have to pay the price for the land instead of having to pay also for the price of buildings erected upon it. If we did not take this opportunity new houses would be erected and we would have to pay for them as well as for the land itself. The market is a very remunerative work, and a revenue of some $30,000 per annum is expected from the new building. The cost of the present improvement is $100,000, and I am informed the value it is proposed to pay for this land, $65,000, is very reasonable and proper. The motion was agreed to.

FINANCIAL.

The COLONIAL SECRETARY, by command of His Excellency the Governor, laid on the table the report of the Finance Committee (No. 17), and moved its adoption.

The COLONIAL TREASURER seconded, and the motion was agreed to.

PUBLIC WORKS COMMITTEE.

The DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC WORKS, by command of His Excellency the Governor, laid on the table the report of the Public Works Committee (No. 3).

LIQUORS DEBATE.

The COLONIAL SECRETARY—Sir, I beg to move the following resolution—Resolved that the sum of $112 as an Import Allowance for the year 1910 be paid out of the Public Revenue of the Colony as a rebate in part to the Naval Authorities in respect of the duties paid on intoxicant liquors (not being Naval Stores) the property of His Majesty consumed at the Officers' Mess at the Royal Naval Hospital and at the Engineers' Mess in His Majesty's Dockyard. This vote is rendered necessary by the inclusion of the institutions mentioned in the rebate system.

The COLONIAL TREASURER seconded, and the motion was agreed to.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

The Hon. Mr. H. E. POLLOCK had given notice of the following questions:—

1. What would be (approximately) the cost of turning and laying out and enclosing the plot of ground to the west of the Hongkong Club in such a manner as to make it uniform with the adjacent plot of ground to the west of it?

2. What work, if any, has been done in connection with the promised erection of a light on Kap Sing Island, at the Southern entrance to the Capsulmum Pass? Has any contract been entered into with reference to this work? If not, why not? If so, what is the contract date for the completion of the work?

3. What is the contract date for the completion of the new Harbour of Refuge at Mong-Kok Tsui?

4. What is the estimated saving of expenditure to be gained by the omission to erect a clock tower on the new Post Office, as was originally designed?

5. Will the Government lay before the Council the information, which is in its possession, with reference to the prospects of a wireless-telegraph station, for the signalling of typhoons, being established on some Island of the Pratas Group?

The COLONIAL SECRETARY replied to the questions as under:—

1. "Not less than $4,000."

2. A tender by Messrs Chance Bros. & Co. for the necessary apparatus for a fifth order light and for a fog-bell together with the structure to support them has been accepted in England. The apparatus and structure will be sent out to the Colony as soon as they are completed.

3. The contract date for the completion of the new Harbour of Refuge at Mongkoktsui is the 26th October, 1915. The amount of the contract is $2,018,025.4.

4. Seventy thousand dollars including a suitable clock.

5. The Government has no information that the Chinese Government has yet taken any steps to make the promised installation. It has again urged upon the Chinese Government through His Majesty's Minister at Peking the desirability of carrying out the work.

NOTICE OF FURTHER QUESTIONS.

The Hon. Mr. OSBOURNE—Sir, I rise to give notice that at the next meeting of the Council I will ask the following questions:

1. Will the Government take steps to prevent the destruction of birds by sham sportsmen, who by means of the Railway are enabled to invade the New Territory and threaten extinction to every form of bird life, game and otherwise.

2. Will the Government cease to be laid on this table half-yearly a statement of the work actually accomplished on the new typhoon refuge; and in such form that the public may be able to judge whether the rate of progress is such as to ensure completion by contract date.

WIDOWS' AND ORPHANS' PENSION AMENDMENT ORDINANCE.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL moved the first reading of a Bill entitled, "An Ordinance to amend the Widows' and Orphans' Pension Ordinance, 1908."

The COLONIAL SECRETARY seconded, and the Bill was read a first time.

The Memorandum attached to this measure explained that this amending Ordinance is necessary to remove doubts as to the interpretation of the existing Ordinance with regard to the method of fixing the amount of contribution to be paid by officers drawing salaries fixed on a dollar basis. It will be the existing practice and give effect to the Resolution passed by the Legislative Council on August 7th, 1902.

COMPANIES ORDINANCES CONSOLIDATION ORDINANCE.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL moved the second reading of the Bill entitled, "An Ordinance to consolidate and amend the Ordinances relating to Companies." In doing so he said—On moving, Sir, the first reading of this Bill I explained its object, which was to establish uniformity in commercial centres of the British Empire on the law relating to companies. It consolidates the existing Ordinances and follows with such amendments as are necessary to the local conditions in the Imperial Companies Consolidation Act, 1908. The object of that Act was, as I then pointed out, to promote commercial integrity and protect the investing public from the avarice of company promoters. The Bill, Sir, was introduced some time ago, and I do not hesitate to affirm from information I have received from all quarters, freely received, that the measure has been well received not only amongst the commercial community of the Colony, but in the commercial community of Shanghai. In fact I am not exaggerating when I make bold to declare that the Bill has been received with a chorus of universal acclamation. Comparatively few amendments have been suggested to me, and these amendments I have received will be dealt with when the Bill is referred to the Law Committee. It will receive the very careful consideration of the Law Committee and if necessary of the committee of the whole house afterwards. Since the introduction of the Bill an important judgment by the Chief Justice has raised the question of the status of the Shanghai companies under our Companies Ordinance. The effect of that judgment is that in the opinion of the Chief Justice it is in the opinion of a foreign company to register in this Colony it must in reality carry on business in Hongkong, and the carrying on of its business here must be in reality and not merely in name. Now, Sir, the Government is fully impressed with the importance of this decision and recognizes that it is in the interests both of companies trading in the treaty ports and in this Colony to preserve the existing system and for the Government to place no stumbling block in the way of Shanghai or other companies registering in this Colony, the local Companies Ordinances of 1907 and 1909 being expressly to facilitate the position of companies that are registered here to carry on business outside the Colony. I mention that fact, Sir, as showing the trend legislation has recently taken in expressly recognizing the position of companies carrying on business elsewhere. Having regard, therefore, to the judgment of the Chief Justice, to which I have alluded, the Government is losing no time in submitting proposals for the consideration of the Secretary of State with a view to maintaining the status quo ante. This will, if approved by the Secretary of State, necessitate certain amendments being made in the Bill, so as to assure the position of these companies being placed beyond all doubt. These amendments, I submit, need not delay the consideration of the Bill by the Standing Law Committee, which I shall presently invite the Council to commit to them. As regards the principles of the Bill, I referred to them more fully than usual on the first reading. We desire to place our company law in uniformity with that prevailing at home. We desire to protect shareholders. We desire a more perfect system of audit. We desire that the general law prevailing as regards companies at home shall be brought up to date in this Colony. I beg to move the second reading, and if the Council will read the Bill a second time I will move that it be referred to the Standing Law Committee, so that I will have the advice of my hon. and learned friend opposite and my hon. and learned friend on my left in dealing with the various amendments which may occur.

The COLONIAL SECRETARY seconded.

Hon. Mr. POLLOCK—There is one remark I wish to make, Sir. I have not as yet been appointed a member of the Law Committee.

HIS EXCELLENCY—I was about to refer to that. The hon. member, I think, is a member of the Law Committee, and his place was taken during his absence by the hon. Mr. Murray Stewart. As that gentleman has now left the Council, I hold that the hon. member who has spoken resumes his seat at the Council and becomes a member of the Law Committee. If the Council should wish formally to re-nominate him it can be done, but I myself see no necessity for doing so.

Hon. Mr. HAWKES—Your Excellency, I would point out that this Bill is of far-reaching order. The hon. Attorney-General says that this Bill is merely bringing Hongkong up to date. That is quite true. I think that no business man here would object to bringing the Hongkong Companies Ordinance up to date with what obtains in Great Britain, but it is a very great advance on what is existing now, and I think we ought to have reasonable time for discussing this question. The Attorney-General appears to think, as I gathered from his remarks, that the amendments will be few. I have it in my mind that the amendments suggested by the mercantile community of Hongkong may be very considerable, and the Bill may lead to a great deal more discussion and amendment than your Excellency and the officials of Hongkong seem to think. I trust, therefore, that the Bill will not be rushed. I only make these remarks because the Chamber of Commerce have had not a full opportunity of considering the Bill, but they will consider it at the earliest possible moment. We may, I don't say we will, have to put forward in the interests of the mercantile community a good many more amendments than your Excellency appears to anticipate. Therefore, I venture to suggest that we have every possible and reasonable time for reconsidering it before it becomes law. I have no more to say at the moment, because the matter will be considered by the Chamber which I represent. It is a very important measure, and will make radical changes in the working of companies here. Therefore, things must not be done in a hurry and we must have ample time to consider that Bill.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL—I quite understand that there are possibly numerous amendments which may crop up, but I do not think that will interfere with the Law Committee taking the Bill into consideration at once.

Hon. Mr. HAWKES—Not at all.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL—I would ask the hon. member to refer to the Law Committee any amendments he has. The Bill is bound to engage the attention of the Law Committee, I expect, for some considerable time, but that need not prevent the motion for its commitment to that Committee.

The COLONIAL SECRETARY seconded, and the motion was agreed to.

The Bill was afterwards referred to the Law Committee.

COLONIAL SECRETARY'S FORTHCOMING DEPARTURE.

HIS EXCELLENCY—Gentlemen, I have to announce to you that His Majesty has been pleased to select the Hon. Colonial Secretary as Governor of Fiji and High Commissioner for the South Pacific (Applause). The Council will now adjourn sine die, and as far as I can foresee is not likely to meet again until towards the end of February, when we assemble to pass the jurors' list. Therefore, this will probably be the last occasion on which we shall see the hon. member in his accustomed seat, a seat which I believe he has occupied longer than any other person at this table. I think, therefore, it is fitting that the records of this Council should contain some reference to the loss the Council will suffer on his departure. I am confident that the few observations which I have to add to the announcement will voice the unanimous feelings of every member of this Council.

but if any unofficial member should desire to bring forward a motion in order to crystallize more precisely the feelings of the Council, or because he considers that course more in consonance with standing orders, I will readily agree to its urgency, and no doubt the Council in accordance with Rule 13 will take that view. It is not possible to dissociate the work of the Colonial Secretary as a member of this Council and the larger sphere of work in the Colony outside the walls of this house. He has spent all his working life in this Colony, since first he came to it some twenty-eight years ago, and during all that time he has worked as you all know most strenuously for the public service—(Hear, hear, and applause)—not sparing himself and not endeavouring to place any close limit on the demand on his time as on his thoughts which the public service needed. He has set an example to younger members of the Colonial Service of devotion to duty and absolute integrity, an example of which probably neither they nor he can recognize the full effects. My own life has been a varied one, spent in the public service in various parts of the world, and I can say to you in this Colony that never in all my experience have I met an official whom I have been able to recognize as more thoroughly conscientious, more rigidly impartial, or more hard-working than the Colonial Secretary of Hongkong. (Applause.) His great ability, his sound common sense and unequalled knowledge of affairs in this Colony, will be a great public loss, and his advice and loyal assistance will be a loss to myself. This is not the place in which to allude to his activities in the social life of this Colony. No doubt an opportunity will be offered elsewhere. I will only say that he and his wife will be very greatly missed when they go. We can each of us aspire to no higher honour and no greater reward than that it should be said of us by those with whom we have been associated, as we on all say of Sir Henry May, that throughout his public service he has upheld the best traditions of public life and in both his public and private capacity he has always maintained the character of an English gentleman sans peur et sans reproche. (Applause.)

The COLONIAL SECRETARY—Sir, I wish to express my appreciation of the honour you, Sir, as President of this Council, have done me.

Sir Henry was perceptibly overcome with emotion and he immediately resumed his seat.

RE-NOMINATION OF MR. POLLOCK.

HIS EXCELLENCY—I think, gentlemen, it would perhaps be more correct if the hon. Mr. Pollock be formally re-appointed to the Law Committee. I have, therefore, much pleasure in re-nominating him.

Council adjourned, and on His Excellency re-entering the Chamber later.

The COLONIAL SECRETARY reported that the Finance Committee had unanimously adopted Financial Minutes Nos. 93 to 114, and he recommended that the votes therein referred to be approved.

The COLONIAL TREASURER seconded, and the motion was agreed to.

HIS EXCELLENCY—Council stands adjourned sine die.

GOLF AND GOLFERS.

PROBLEM OF STANDARDISING THE BALL.

Mr. Henry Leach, writing in The Standard, says:—

When the professionals had their final tournament of the season, nearly two months ago, there was much talk about the possibility of standardising the rubber-cored ball, and Willie Park made a suggestion to the effect that no ball that did not float in water should be allowed for play, not so much, it is true, because it would not float, as that it failing to do so indicated a specific gravity which was in favour of a longer flight than had been customary with rubber-cored balls. The suggestion did not receive much encouragement from players generally or from the critics. We have been having various discussions upon standardising the ball off and on for the past four or five years, but generally they have been brief and vague, for such standardisation has seemed to be utterly impracticable, and all the time there has been a feeling that we were getting near to the end of the process of perfecting this ball, and that when finally it was reached, there would be no more balls made that would travel further than all their predecessors, there would be an end to all grumbling and fear in the matter. But each season has seemed to put a few more yards on to the ball.

CLUB COMMITTEES' FEARS.
Until just lately it has been done by improving the interior construction, but the possibilities in this direction have been exhausted, the manufacturers have turned their attention to experimenting with the size, the specific gravity, and the nature of the marking. It now appears that they have found something at last which is likely to upset all calculations about an early finality, and most seriously disturb the peace of mind of committees of clubs who have the dread vision before them of all their long holes being reached with a drive and an iron by even moderate players, and so the conclusion is arrived at that the 6,000 and more yards that they had in their mind are not enough. Having some idea about what was going on in certain parts of the golfing country I communicated with a certain amateur player of the very highest standing, who had been a witness to it, and he answered me thus: "I saw a professional carry 220 yards against a wind."

With the same wind a 260 yards carry was done by him. Another professional (named) did 250 and 280 yards carries on a green more before driven, at the top of a steep hill flanked by grass. This was a fine carry. I did a 180 yards carry with a mid-iron, playing against a wind that was strong enough to stop the ball running more than from five to ten yards, although the ground was hilly. The hole is on a slight edge, and it is all carry. A mid-iron is not much lofted, but it is not quite a driving iron."

Now we may accept this statement as being quite reliable, and, doing so, we must at once see that a most serious state of affairs has arisen. If these things had happened during the competition season there would have been something in the nature of a panic; as it is, there is time to think the matter over quietly before the beginning of next season. It is quite clear that the ball and the other that will soon be made like it will upset all the holes on all the courses and make the bunkering all wrong again. It does, in fact, appear that it will cause a dislocation of the game greater than anything we have known since the rubber ball first came in, and once more everybody will begin to say that "something must be done," but what it is that should be done, is more than anybody can say. Elementary thoughts, of course, turn upon the subject of standardisation, but what is it that is going to be standardised? A little while since somebody said that it would be a good thing to make a new rule that if the rubber ball was played with on ordinary occasions the gully should be used in championships and all other competitions and matches of the first importance.

A SEVERE HANDICAP.
That, however, would not get us out of our difficulties. The great majority of the competitors for the amateur championship in these days are men who have been trained up in their golf with the rubber-cored ball, and they would revolt against any insistence that the other one should be used in the championships. How could they revolt? It might be asked, if the rule were made by the governing clubs. Well, I doubt if such a rule would be made by the governing clubs, who are many in number, and in several cases are less for the championship than for the game in general, but if they did so one who is acquainted with a certain under-current of feeling that exists among the general rank and file of competitors would ask the question as to how they might revolt. It would be clearly unsatisfactory in every sense for men to be playing the game with one kind of ball nearly all the year round and then be asked to play with something entirely different and more difficult to manage in the championship. Then, if anybody thinks that the making of such a rule would tend to induce competitors and aspiring competitors to play with the gully always, and at the same time exercise by example an influence upon the ordinary players to the same end, they are surely mistaken. There are two factors of overwhelming importance in this consideration, one being the constant desire of the player to hit as far as it is possible to hit a ball with a golf club—the yearning for length, and more length—a desire that the rubber ball is vastly more pleasant to play with. These considerations put the possibility of a partial or general reversion to the gully ball which seems to be the only possibility in standardisation—entirely out of the question, unless, by a supreme effort of authority, a general edict that it must be so were issued.

And even if such an edict were issued by such ruling authority as we have at the present time, would it be obeyed? I am sure it would not, and that the rubber balls would continue to be played with so long as the manufacturers made them, and they may be depended on to continue doing so. If there is no possibility, then, of standardising the gully in this way, how can the rubber ball be standardised now so as to prevent any more improvements from being made in it to the detriment of the gully? Such a scheme seems to be as impossible as the other. The suggestion has been made that a ball should be standardised that consisted of a solid rubber core covered with gutta-percha, core and cover being of specified size and weight and the complete ball the same. Such a ball would give satisfaction to nobody, and would be very little better than the gully. Then, with the balls that we have now, so much depends on the winding of the core, the tension of the thread, and the general details of construction that it is impossible to lay down rules as to how they are to be made and what they are to be made of, and make sure that what rules are carried out. You do not know what is inside a ball until you cut it open, and when you have done that you can no longer play with it. The manufacturers could give a guarantee that certain balls were made according to official directions, but something might go wrong with this guarantee, and when a player had won a competition and the ball he had played with were then cut open by the committee to see that it was all right—a procedure which would be too ridiculous, but would still be the only one to ensure that the proper and legalised game was being played—and it was found to be all wrong the player would have to be disqualified for a fault for which most likely he was in no way responsible.

DIFFICULTIES OF THE PROBLEM.

And again, if a player starts with a proper ball and finishes with one, is an official to follow him round the course to see that he plays all the holes with that and with no other? Ideas such as these only indicate the difficulties of the problem, and the one conclusion to be arrived at is that the only way to standardise is for some governing authority to make all the balls that golfers are to play with—and this also is impracticable!—or that they are to give licenses to manufacturers who guarantee in some very special way that they will only make the right thing according to the specification applied to them. Even if this were done, you would have players still sighing for greater length than the official ball yielded them; and then there would be manufacturers, as at present, coming out with something to do it with, and golfers would agree between themselves that in their matches they would use the pirate balls. This suggestion is at the base of the difficulties of the situation, that the average golfer has no regard for authority—and there is no apparent reason at present why he should have. He knows a game of golf which is the kind of thing he most likes to play, and he is going to play that game. What will be the outcome of the situation it is impossible at the present time to say. One thing that is clear is that if matters are allowed to drift the game will soon be brought to a state of chaos, and another is that we have no authority that is properly capable of dealing with the situation.

Something in the nature of a big commission that will carry out a thorough investigation of the whole business from beginning to end and make the best suggestions of which it is capable after doing so is urgently necessary, and this commission should embrace not only some of the leading golfing dignitaries of St. Andrews, but capable representatives of the general golfing public, a series of golf clubs, leading professional players and manufacturers. It is only by combined and thorough investigation of this kind that any good result can be achieved, and the serious danger which is threatened averted. Mr. John Low and the few who were with him must feel how thoroughly their attitude has since been justified when, on the first introduction of the rubber ball, they fought strenuously against it. But it is now too late for any regrets in this connection, and apart from that it is still the fact that the rubber ball has made the game pleasurable for the majority to play, and has most certainly had much to do with the vast increase in the popularity of golf in recent times. These who consider themselves to be at the head of golf are following at this time a comfortable policy of laissez faire. This will not do. The danger is serious and imminent.
